President Howell, of the Wheelin club, is the second Inter-state magnate to record himself in favageof the Intelligencer's double season suggestion. The following telegram was received last night:

FORT WAYNE, Ind., July 21.

FORT WAYNE, Ifd., July 21.

The Intelligencer, Wheeling.

I think well of your double season idea, and hope you may make it a go.

W. B. HOWELL.

If the Intelligencer may be permitted to say so, this paper cannot be expected to make it a go; it devolves upon Messrs. Howell, Guggenheim and other Inter-state magnates, who are in favor of this needed measure of relief, to get in the push and effect what, this paper has suggested.

AN AWFUL LAY-DOWN.

A Fort Wayne Paper's Story of the Slaughter of the Stogies Thursday Afternoon - The Game Became a Furce Pure and Simpla.

The following is the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette's account of the awful slaughter of the Wheelings at Fort Wayne on Thursday afternoon. If the facts are as stated the Wheeling management deserves the severest condem nation at the hands of the fans at

Jack Glasscock was not very tender in his expression of his opinion of Howell, to-day and Cleveland was clean, while that of the Senators was ragged. In the second Freeman made his thirteenth home run, driving in two scores abead of him. This gave the Senators a lead, and they were never headed. Attendance, 2,500 Scores: DELIFE

Jack Glasscock was not very tender in his expression of his opinion of Howell, Wheeling's fat manager. Glasscock's sentiments expressed the feeling of every person inside the enclosure, who had an opportunity to witness Howell's arbitrary actions, and the manner in which he tried to kill the aport in this city, by his baby and exceedingly dumb act yesterday afternoon. These sentiments further express the feeling of the members of the Wheeling base ball club who will votee the opinion that thowell should be working for some street cleaning company instead of trying to run a base ball club.

Through his dirty work, when Bubb was with that club, he assessed a fine against Charley for alleged indifferent playing. He wanted Babb to pay $50 for it, and Howell held back his salary. It has come to light that thost of the money retained by Howell was in a way loaned to, the Wheeling club by Babb, as the money should have been paid to him on the regular pay day and he did not draw it then. After that he was fined. Babb was determined to have what was coming to him and he brought an attachment suit against the Wheeling share of the gate receipts. This, with the fact that his bunch of abused ball players did not have a complete farce out of the game with the evident purpose in view of killing the game in this city.

Everything went well in the first inming, but when Babb came up in the second linking and sent the ball salling over the left field fence for a some run, driving in a man ahead of plin, it set the wheels to working in fish head of me Howell, and it was no long until his crazy ideas prompted him to bit of his own none, furnatively speaking. As Babb trotted home Howell, and it was no long at him as out of a half angry glance and élieved his seat and then he gave him a sort of a half angry glance and élieved his seat and then he gave him a sort of a half angry glance and élieved his seat and then he gave him a sort of a half angry glance and élieved his half angry glance and chewed his score card.

After the next two innings the crazy spell again attacked him. Hy showed his mental weakness by a larkel foresight in what he undertook to do. He did not seem to realize that, the schedule made it necessary for the Fort Wayne public to be tolerated eath him for the remainder of the week. If he had used the sense ordinarile passessed by a man he would have segar that he is losing himself many dollars by littling the game, for he had to finy here next Sunday, and with no attendance, at the game to speak of, he wightnure to call upon the linancial backer of the club for finds to carry his disabilised players over the country.

It was in the fifth inning, when Howell threw to the four winds what little judgment he might have governed and told him men to make a darce of the game. He gave them street orders the game. He gave them struct ore to lay down, and this they had to igh it was against their better at the intelligencer once, and in reply them. The players could not be to the challenge issued in yesterday's
